Dear Parent/Carer

Cambridge Technical Sport January examinations

I am writing to give you important information regarding your child's January exam in Cambridge Technical Sport.

Your child will be sitting their first Cambridge Technical Sport exam in Body Systems and the effects of Physical Activity on Tuesday 10 January 2023. Students should already be revising this half term, as well as during the Christmas break and when they return in the New Year. It is critical that students see this exam of great importance, a high achievement in this, alongside their completed coursework will set them up to achieve an excellent result in this subject.

To ensure your child is as prepared as they can be, we will be offering a breakfast revision session on the morning of their exam to ensure they receive some additional support from their subject teacher. For further support, there are a number of links below which contain resources to help them study at home:-
